Post America needs you! One can easily discern between the Gods of War and the Leader of Nations. I'll leave that up to you. Who would have thought when this song was written that we as a nation would have changed so drastically.. so quickly... The time is short and growing shorter by the day. Awaken from your political slumber before it's too late. And S T A N D

Post Posted for our reading members Credit; Laura Cooper Sadly, despite being told by my sources in Washington that Pence himself read this article and initially appeared to agree with it, it seems that Pence has decided to back away right as we come to the precipice; that he will refuse to save this Republic, and has in actuality now planning to betray President Trump at this, the final hour. I always knew this would be an option for Pence. Should he really desire to betray Trump, all he had to do was keep his cards close to his chest, pretend to be an ally, and then flip at the last possible second in order to run out the clock and prevent Trump from being able to respond at all. This is what's happening now. This is where we are at - with a man closest to the President, who - according to our whistleblower - secretly agreed to participate in a coup against that very same President, set to determine the fate of that same President, by getting to decide which slates of electors
